Chesterfield Shelter because his family lost their housing during government shut down and were evicted! They provided all positive info about him, and it's clear they loved him dearly. However, the first thing they wrote was that he was purchased at a pet store as a "mini Shih Tzu." WRONG!!! This boy may not be 100% Lhasa (we never promote as purebred ), but he looks more like a Lhasa than a Shih Tzu and he isn't a "mini" – he's just the right size.

Apollo was a shut down when he arrived; he didn't understand where his people had gone. Now, when I come home, he gets really excited and circles to express his glee! He came to us with a horrible case of kennel cough, (for 3 weeks) and a double eye infection. He took his meds like a champ, but he did not enjoy having drops put in his eyes because they sting and he let us know he didn't like it! That is the only time he has snapped. But, for that reason we think he would be better off without children. He was great with the ointment and he's now all better. He does have very slight dry eye in one eye but it seems to be resolving itself. He gives very gentle kisses to let you know he loves you anyway! If you put him in your arms and love him....he's all yours. We believe a family who understands the Lhasa personality will adore Apollo, who is a lover, not a fighter!

Apollo is a good eater! He will let you know if he feels like being picky, which isn't often....but there is no guessing with him! He loves to be loved and really needs extra TLC right now, which he is getting. Seems to be potty trained, but we never guarantee. Will you let Apollo light up your heart and life...and will you light up his?
