HERE'S GABLE…and he is one handsome dude! We think this gorgeous guy is an 18 lb, 4.5 yr old, beautiful grizzle colored Lhasa Spaniel who doesn't shed! He has a Lhasa face but Spaniel, long legs! He was found in a bus parking lot by a bus driver who said, "he didn't move his position except across the room from where he was laying the day I found him, so I took him home!" After exhausting all efforts to find his family, she called us and the rest is history!

Gable has a very calm demeanor and he is such a kind dog. It is amazing that we have never heard him bark! That being said, he does "talk" sometimes, which sounds like whining but it's cuter! Really sounds like he has something to say, but not in an annoying way! I happen to love sloths and he reminds me of a sloth haha…he likes to stroll on his walks…he's kind of a cool, gentle soul. That being said, he can keep up with the best of them! Loves to play with his foster bud, so we are thinking (and his finder agrees) he would prefer being in a home with another dog and/or wants his person around a lot! We don't think he would be a good fit for a senior household because he is a bit on the bigger side and he likes to jump up on you to give you love!!

Gable is extremely loving, gives sweet kisses to let you know you're his person. He gets extremely excited when you come home and jumps up with his foster buddy to give lots of love and affection – to get it, too! He is getting better and better each day on his walks…sometimes, he will just stop and pp or poo in place! In the morning when he relieves himself he goes forever! He should go on a minimum of three walks a day. We never guarantee they are potty trained!!

We love this guy and he will be hard to part with…but Gable wants to love his way into your heart and believe me, it won't take long.
