Breed: Lhasa Apso mix (?)

Age: 3-4 yrs

Sex: Male

Weight: 12 lb

THIS IS JACKSON – a 12-lb, 3-4 yr old, tan-and-white Lhasa Apso mix (our best guess). This poor little guy was dumped in the Carson shelter with a split nose and only one nostril. He appeared to have been attacked by another dog and required surgery to repair his nose. Now that he's had a chance to heal, he's ready for his forever home! Jackson has great energy, but settles down when his human do. He doesn't really seem interested in other dogs – he's more interested in being with you! He shows his affection by nuzzling you with his head or rolling over for belly rubs! He absolutely loves to be held and is a total lap dog. He will bark for a few minutes when his humans leave, but he settles down quickly. He loves to go on long walks and would be great on a light hike, but he could use some training on leash manners. Jackson should be okay in a household with children over 8 years old. He seems to be potty trained in his foster home, but we never guarantee. Could Jackson be the pup for you?
